Your tasks

- During your apprenticeship, you'll learn about every stage of the production process and discover just how delicious the results of your work can be.
- Across various production lines, you'll gain plenty of practical experience in setting up, monitoring and operating our production equipment, and you'll work as part of a team to ensure the smooth manufacture of our specialities – carefully following set recipes and procedures.
- When it comes to product development, laboratory techniques and product variety, we'll equip you with the skills you need through inter-company training programmes – so that your enthusiasm for the job certainly won't wane even after you've completed your apprenticeship.

What you bring with you

- At least a good secondary school leaving certificate
- Technical understanding and manual dexterity
- A focused and meticulous approach to work
- Reliability and a passion for working as part of a team
